1853-1854-1856 2018-09-06 excerpt from through lands that were dark being a record of a year s missionary journey in africa and madagascar i hear a clear voice calling calling calling out of the night o you who live in the light of life bring us the light we are bound in the chains of darkness our eyes received no sight o you who have never been bound or blind bring us the light we live amid turmoil and horror where might is the only right o you to whom life is liberty bring us the light we stand in the ashes of ruins we are ready to fight the fight o you whose feet are firm on the rock bring us the light you cannot you shall not forget us out here in the darkest night we are drowning men we are dying men bring o bring us the light john oxenham about Three Visits to Madagascar During the Years 1853-1854-1856 1878 this inspiring memoir of one woman s experience in the field is an exotic adventure story a surprise journey of self discovery and a deeply personal appreciation of a place that is unlike any other at age twenty five graduate student kerianne mcgoogan traveled into the wilds of madagascar to study lemurs in their natural habitat and to set up a permanent field site in the remote northwest a site to which she could later return to do research for her phd in biological anthropology despite careful planning the trip spiraled out of control food poisoning harrowing backcountry roads grueling hikes challenging local politics malaria and an emergency evacuation would turn a simple reconnaissance into an epic adventure in an engaging narrative the author vividly describes the challenges of life in an isolated forest region while also bringing to life the wonders of madagascar's incredible biodiversity especially its many varieties of lemurs sadly these rare animals are the most endangered group of primates in the world at first accompanied by her thesis advisor mcgoogan is soon left alone when her mentor must return home she carries on as the lone woman amid a small band of local male assistants diligently conducting research on the lemur population around the camp but when her right hand man becomes delirious with malaria she is forced to lead her team on a desperate three day trek to safety this fascinating memoir is equal parts a journey of self discovery an adventure story and a heartfelt appreciation of a wonderful island country teeming with unique species and peopled by the warm and welcoming malagasies with their intriguing indigenous culture

Three Visits to Madagascar During the Years 1853-1854-1856 1981 with charm erudition humour and passion the world's favourite natural history broadcaster documents some of his expeditions from the late 1950s onwards Sunday Express following the success of the original Zoo Quest expeditions the young David Attenborough embarked on further travels in a very different part of the world from Madagascar and New Guinea to the Pacific Islands and the Northern Territory of Australia he and his cameraman companion were aiming to record not just the wildlife but the way of life of some of the indigenous people of these regions whose traditions had never been encountered by most of the British public before from the land divers of Pentecost Island and the Sing Sing of New Guinea to a royal Kava ceremony on Tonga and the ancient art of the Northern Territory it is a journey like no other alongside these remarkable cultures he encounters paradise birds chameleons sifakas and many more animals in some of the most unique environments on the planet written with David Attenborough's characteristic charm humour and warmth Journeys to the Other Side of the World is an inimitable adventure among people places and the wildest of wildlife abundantly good too a wondrous reminder of Attenborough's pioneering role full of delightful tales Daily Express an adventure that sparked a lifetime's commitment to the planet the Lady Attenborough is a fine writer and storyteller Irish Times
